LABOUR FORCE SURVEY

2022 Questionnaire
1st Quarter

Re-interview questionnaire for the Labour Force Survey

The sampling design of the labour force survey requires that families be interviewed four times over fifteen months on a rotating basis. Specially created groups of families are interviewed the first time and then after three, twelve and fifteen months. Re-interviews are thus directed at families (and individuals) to be contacted for the second, third and fourth part of the survey.

The re-interview questionnaire has the same structure as the one used in the first interview. In addition to the household form with changes in data, it consists of fourteen sections (from A to N), each oriented to report on different aspects of the survey.

A significant aspect of the re-interview is that there is a need to confirm answers they gave previously for a substantial number of individuals. This will simplify the progress of the questionnaire and reduce statistical problems. In the attached draft of the questionnaire, the questions expected to be confirmed are set apart by the suffix C. Some of them are essential queries about kind of activity, occupation, economic activity, usual working hours, place of work, the start of activities, previous experience, education, and occupational training. In some cases, the confirmation of key variables can also allow automatic recording of additional information already taken down in the previous interview.

Instead of confirming the provided responses, they could be partially or entirely changed. In the former case, the sequence established in the questionnaire from the first interview should be followed; in the latter, it will be possible to move away from the confirmation responses and then return to them.

However, the sections, or the questions in them, that explicitly reference a certain period should be asked of all subjects again in the re-interview.
