Introduction

This bibliography of publications using or presenting Eurobarometer data is continuously compiled in the context of the GESIS library acquisition procedure, complemented by feedback from users of GESIS archive resources (see below) and our own searches. In order to carry on this Eurobarometer bibliography we would like to ask for information about any research using Eurobarometer data done by you, or in your organization, or that you are aware of. We are interested in bibliographic information on all types of publication: books, articles, reports, conference papers, student theses or doctoral dissertations etc. Please include information on the dataset(s) and the DOI which were used in the research.

Please send your citations to eurobarometer-dataservice@gesis.org

Moreover, a bibliographic citation of Eurobarometer primary data within your publication is required whenever analysis results are used for publications. All necessary information should be looked up in the respective GESIS Data Catalogue entry (study description), since it may change from wave to wave. A typical example for a correct citation of Eurobarometer micro data would be:

European Commission, Brussels; Directorate General Communication COMM.A.1 'Strategic Communication' (2016): Eurobarometer 86.2 (2016). GESIS Data Archive, Cologne. ZA6788 Data file Version 1.1.0, doi:10.4232/1.12763
